Ava doesn't like wearing her glasses until her teacher – with help from some fairy tales – shows her how powerful they really are.

- Engaging and empowering.
- Endearing, whimsical illustrations.
- Relatable – all kinds of kids, all kinds of “different.”
- Springboard for writing activities: “What if ...?”

“Imagine if Hansel and Gretel had worn their glasses when they got lost in the woods. They would have seen the signs pointing them safely home.”

Ava looked brighter.
